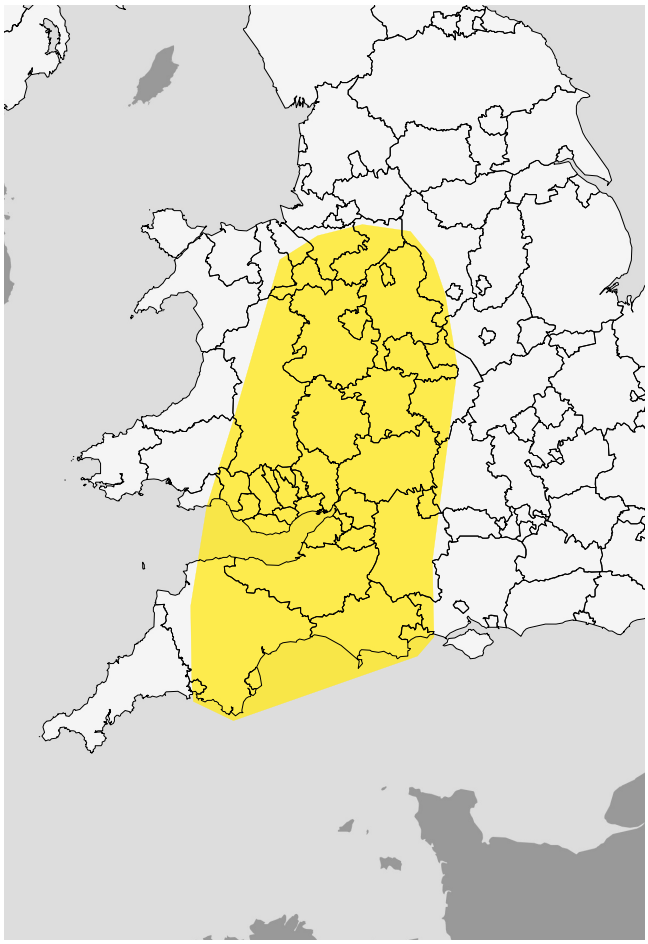
Between
14:00 Mon 5 Sep 2022 and
02:00 Tue 6 Sep 2022



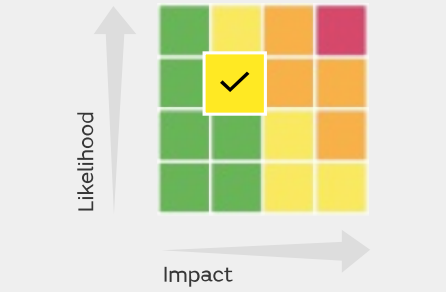
Thunderstorms are likely to cause disruption in some places during Monday afternoon and night

What to expect

- Driving conditions are likely to be affected by spray, standing water, hail and gusty winds, leading to longer journey times by car and bus
- Some flooding of a few homes and businesses likely, leading to some damage to buildings or structures
- Delays to some train services are likely
- Probably some damage to a few buildings and structures from either lightning strikes or gusty winds
- Some short term loss of power and other services is likely

Further details

Thunderstorms are likely to develop across parts of southwest England and Wales during Monday afternoon and become more organised through the evening. Lines of thunderstorms are expected to then move north during the early hours of Tuesday and gradually weaken as they clear into northern England before dawn. Whilst some places will see little or no rainfall, a few locations may see torrential rain with 20-30 mm falling in one hour and 50-80 mm in 3 hours. Additional hazards accompanying stronger thunderstorms include frequent lightning, hail and gusty winds, particularly during the evening period.



Medium likelihood of low impacts
